Brown gets tough

■ by LOUISA BARNETT

GORDON Brown last night promised to make tackling terrorism his top priority if he got the keys to Number 10. The Chancellor said it was time for the Prime Minister to "take the lead" and backed calls from Britain's top cop, Sir Ian Blair, for anti-terror powers to be toughened. Mr Brown said: "Action against terrorism deserves a dedicated seat at the top table. If you are Prime Minister, you simply cannot devolve responsibility for protecting the nation. It must always be your first priority.

Terror

"But ultimately, because the fight against terrorism must be fought both at home and abroad, it is the Prime Minister who must take the lead, as Tony Blair has done."

Brown – runaway favourite to become next PM – also said he "completely agreed" with Metropolitan Police chief Sir Ian Blair's plea for stronger laws to hold terror suspects without charge, including extending the 28-day limit.

In a speech in Berlin yesterday Sir Ian admitted that if there had been more than 24 suspects in the recent alleged airline plot, "we would probably have run out of time".

Soldiers' Iraq boat patrol blasted by bomb

4 BRITS DEAD IN BASRA HORROR

FOUR British soldiers were killed and three were badly hurt yesterday when their boat was blown up in Iraq.

The troops were patrolling the Shatt Al Arab waterway off Basra when militants detonated a bomb as they passed.

No details were released about the men's identities as next of kin were still being contacted last night.

Royal Marines have been guarding the waterway – the meeting point of the Euphrates and Tigris rivers – for three years.

At least one of the injured men was said to be fighting for his life.

Hospital

The three injured men, believed to have been in a support boat, were evacuated by helicopter to a field hospital at the nearby Shaibah base.

British military spokesman Captain Tane Dunlop said explosives and weapons experts were examining the incident to determine exactly what had happened.

It was unclear whether the device had been in the water or had been fired from the banks of the waterway.

Captain Dunlop added: "The use of improvised explosive devices is very common in Iraq."

"There have been a number of such attacks in the Basra province and city."

Troops were last night trying to track down the attackers.

Sources in Iraq said it was believed to be the first time that such an assault had been made on a boat patrol.

Defence Secretary Des Browne said in a statement: "This terrible incident reinforces in our minds the sacrifice made by the brave men and women of our armed forces.

■ by TOM SAVAGE

"My thoughts are with the families of the four so tragically killed and of those who were wounded."

Proud

"This blow will be felt too by their friends and colleagues across the services, who continue to display the courage and professionalism of which we are rightly proud."

Liberal Democrat leader Sir Menzies Campbell said: "Our thoughts must immediately be with the families and friends of those who have been killed and injured."

Elsewhere in Iraq, three American soldiers were killed in combat in western Al-Anbar province.

Two suicide bombers killed 35 people and wounded 60 at a police commando recruiting centre in western Baghdad.

Police in the capital last night found more than 75 bodies dumped on the city's streets.

Drugs rap anger

LABOUR'S pledge to crackdown on drug dealers was in tatters last night after it was revealed that just two out of 36,000 criminals jailed for supplying class A drugs received a maximum sentence.

Home Office figures show that between 2000 and 2004, 35,855 people were convicted of supplying cocaine, heroin, crack, ecstasy, LSD and methadone.

But just two of these were handed a life sentence – the maximum available to courts in England and Wales.

Last night Tory MP David Davies, who uncovered the figures after a question to Home Secretary John Reid, described the situation as "an appalling travesty".

I'LL MAKE BECKS A FILM STAR

Pal Cruise plans big hero roles

by NADINE LINGE
DAVID Beckham is being groomed for Hollywood stardom - and he'll link up with pal Tom Cruise for a string of top roles.

A leading showbiz tycoon is planning to launch the ex-England skipper, 31, as a silver-screen action hero if he moves to L.A.

And Mission: Impossible star Cruise, 44, could be the key to Becks success.

They are close friends and the Beckhams are expected to be among the 500 guests at his Italian wedding to Katie Holmes, 27, next week.

Hits

Entrepreneur Robert Sillerman is working on a strategy to launch Beckham's film career, codenamed Plan B.

It rests on the player quitting Real Madrid - where he's rumoured to be unhappy - for the Los Angeles Galaxy team.

Becks will start off with cameo roles, like ex-Wimbledon footballer Vinnie Jones, 41, who appeared in hits such as Gone In 60 Seconds alongside Nicolas Cage, 42.

The small spots could be filmed in between matches for the Galaxy before he moves on to bigger roles when his playing days are over.

Sillerman, 57, owns the Beckhams' London management firm 19 Entertainment.

And he has promised to turn David and Victoria, 32, into an American

LICENSED TO THRILL: Becks and, inset, big mate Cruise

"power couple". There's even talk Becks could land the James Bond role after current 007 Daniel Craig, 38, if his profile soars high enough.

One Hollywood executive said: "If Daniel Craig doesn't work out as 007, Beckham could step into his shoes."

Beckham is also likely to team up with Cruise, who has moved behind the camera.

He plans to produce 12 films over the next three years - mainly action flicks, which would be perfect for superfit Beckham.

BABES FALL FOR

Phina and pals fight over Gest

■ from PETER DYKE in Oz
SCARY David Gest and Bible-bashing virgin Phina Oruche look set to become the oddest couple ever seen on I'm a Celebrity.

Footballers' Wives babe Phina, 34, has already offered to sleep with the camp Yank.

But she faces tough competition to get her hands on Liza Minnelli's ex, who is fast becoming the ITV show's most unlikely babe magnet.

Gorgeous singer Mylene Klass, 28, and even former BBC newsreader Jan Leeming, 64, have also fallen for his dubious charms.

Gest won over all the girls with his bravery when the celebs were shown the deadly creatures they'll encounter in the camp. But Phina

LEND A HAND: The celebs have a bonding session before going into the jungle camp is the favourite to form a bizarre union with Gest – who claims to be 48, but is believed to be 53.

When she asked him to sleep with her in the jungle camp, the music mogul accepted in a flash.

He said: "Phina is the bomb. Sexy, great voice and makes me laugh. She is a great beauty."

Curvy former model Phina – who has taken a Bible into the jungle and claims to be a virgin – repaid the compliment by calling him "my Braveheart".

When the celebs were shown the type of creatures they might face in the Australian Bush, Gest was the first to step forward and touch one of the huge jungle spiders.

He also handled a python and a deadly brown snake, which he cheekily nicknamed Ant and Dec after the show's Geordie hosts.

Foxy Phina, who played lesbian Liberty Baker in Footballers' Wives, cooed: "Oh David, you're so brave. Will you protect me from the leeches?"

"I'll sleep with you. Not next to your bed, not near your bed – I'm going to be with you in your bed," Gest purred: "I accept your invitation. You are so cute."

But musician Mylene was also impressed and added: "Bags I sleep next to David. He'll be great if any creatures get into camp."

The other celebs were curious to know how the ex-husband of Hollywood superstar Minnelli, 60, knew so much about the wildlife and why he felt at ease with them.

He replied: "My friend Michael Jackson taught me."

Gest, who's being paid a whopping £100,000 to appear on the ITV1 show, then won over stressed Jan Leeming by giving her a massage.

She was so thrilled, she asked him: "What can I do for you in return?"

He joked: "Speed up my divorce from Liza."

However, one woman who failed to impress him was Lauren Booth, 39, who said Gest was more frightening than Jacko.

Freaky

The pair had a confrontation just before they set off for the camp after he found out she'd been making fun of his looks.

Gest, who refuses to say if he's had plastic surgery, had learned the hack had remarked on his "freaky" image and branded him "ironing board face".

When they met for the first time at the luxury Versace Hotel on the Gold Coast, ahead of the show's launch, Gest told her: "You've had such great things to say about me in the papers. Anything else you want to say?"

Lauren tried to excuse herself: "It's just those flippant remarks you say when you are nervous."

But Gest snubbed her, turning his back on her.

Lust is off limits for pop hunk Matt

HUNKY Matt Willis has admitted he'll get BUSTED by his girlfriend if he gets too cosy with any of the jungle babes on the show. The 23-year-old singer says he's excited to meet beauties Myleene Klass and Phina Oruche in the jungle. But he knows if he gets flirty with them, he'll face an ear-bashing from his girlfriend, sexy MTV presenter Emma Griffiths, 31. Former Busted star Matt said: "I'm having to be a good boy. I will behave. I know Myleene might prance around in a bikini, but I am not looking for love. "Anyway, everything is caught on camera. If I do anything, I'll face the consequences because Emma is actually flying out to Oz towards the end of the show. "She is usually very cool about girls being around me.

And she is super-excited that I'm going in the jungle. She thinks I'm brave." He's also taken some tips from his mates: "They told me there were two things I can't do. "They said don't get involved with all the bitching and don't cry. If I cry, they'll never speak to me again!"

MYLEENE'S BOOBED

NAUGHTY Myleene Klass was caught trying to sneak extra grub into the jungle - inside her bra. She tucked jam and butter down her cleavage, fearing she'll end up starving in the Bush. But sharp-eyed security guards rumbled her plan. They frisked her before she headed into the camp and discovered the sexy former Hear'Say singer's secret booty. A source said: "Myleene has a terrible sweet tooth. She's been scoffing loads of chocolate and cake at her hotel ahead of the show. "Just before their trip into the Bush, all the stars were treated to a buffet. Myleene grabbed some jam and butter and stuffed it down her bra. "She knows it's going to get tough on the show and that she could end up eating rice and beans." But she wasn't the only one caught out yesterday. Comic Faith Brown, 65, tried sneaking hairclips in, while catwalk designer Scott Henshall, 30, was caught with some extra pairs of woolly socks.

A REAL scream in every sense, Liza Minnelli's scary ex became the unlikely babe magnet on Day 1. But he's camper than a row of jungle tents.

FOOD-tasters on the show admit they throw up as they test the menu for the Bush-tucker Trials.

A team of 10 is responsible for trying the stomach-churning nosh served up to queasy contestants. Previous celebs have eaten such delicacies as kangaroo testicles. And one taster said: "It's been hard to keep things down. Lots of us have thrown up." But menu-planner Chris Lore's team have to taste everything to make sure it is safe for the squeamish stars.

Grisly

"We draw straws for task," he said. "The foods get more revolting each year." The team says the trials will be more gruesome than ever. A million cockroaches, 200 rats, 50 spiders, 200 snakes and other horrors are already waiting in a grisly backstage zoo. And any celebs trying to escape from camp will be terrified into returning by camouflaged guards impersonating wild animals.

I'M A Celebrity bosses spent months trying to hide the names of the stars selected for jungle duty by using their own secret Da Vinci Code operation.

The cloak-and-dagger plot meant giving each celeb a nickname in a bid to throw spies off the scent and keep identities under wrap. The stars' hush-hush codenames were Mr Goliath (David Gest), Mr Broken (Matt Willis from Busted), Mr Frock (designer Scott Henshall), Mr Neighbour (ex-soap star Jason Donovan), Mr Heart (Heart FM DJ Toby Anstis), Miss Black (Faith Brown), Miss School (Myleene Klass), Miss Post Office (Phina Oruche), Miss News (ex-BBC newsgirl Jan Leeming) and Miss Phone (Lauren Booth).

But your Daily Star proved to be real crackers when it came to breaking the secret code for readers.

FOUR stars dropped into the jungle yesterday – literally. Shocked Myleene Klass, 28, Jason Donovan, 38, Matt Willis, 23, and Lauren Booth, 39, were lost for words when they were told they wouldn't be walking into the camp.

Instead they had to bungee jump in.

The four were airlifted by helicopter over the rain forest in Murwillumbah, New South Wales, and had to leap out attached to a springy rope.

Terrified Myleene said: "I just hope I don't bounce back up and hit the rotor blades."

But she and the rest of the team successfully completed their drops.

Meanwhile, there was drama for another gang of stars even before they had started their trek.

Comedienne Faith Brown, 65 – who is terrified of heights – broke down in tears when told she and the others had to board a helicopter.

But David Gest, 53, stepped in to raise her spirits and jolly her along.

She and her jungle pals – Phina Oruche, 31, Toby Anstis, 35, Jan Leeming, 64, and Scott Henshall, 30 – were flown part of the way into camp before being told they had to kayak the rest.

All 10 celebs eventually arrived safely and have spent their first night in the jungle.

Day to remember the men and women who made Britain great

THE Queen yesterday led the nation's tributes as Britain honoured its victims of war.

Thousands of veterans joined her at the Remembrance Day ceremony at the Cenotaph in central London.

Meanwhile in Iraq and Afghanistan soldiers serving on the front line also took time out to remember their fallen comrades.

Back in Whitehall, Iraq war widow Raqual Harper-Titchener laid a wreath of autumn leaves in memory of the 16,000 who have been killed on duty since World War Two.

Her husband, Major Matthew Harper-Titchener, 32, died in Iraq in August 2003.

Sacrifice

Raqual, 31, said: "It's an honour and a privilege to be here. It's also recognition for Matthew and for all those who have continued to pay the ultimate sacrifice."

Another special wreath was laid in London when a schoolgirl carried a circle of poppies containing the initials of the Shot At Dawn campaign, which aims to secure pardons for executed soldiers.

But the first wreath was laid by the Queen, 80, ignoring twinges from her bad back.

She was followed by

Prince William, 24, and his stepmum Camilla, 59, watched from the Foreign Office balcony.

William's brother Prince Harry, 22, was attending a private service with the Household Cavalry in Windsor.

Tony Blair, 53, joined former Prime Ministers Baroness Thatcher, 81, and Sir John Major, 63, at the Cenotaph ceremony.

There were also wreath-laying ceremonies in towns and cities across the country.

A total of 125 British forces personnel have died in Iraq since 2003 and 41 in Afghanistan since 2001.

Dumped hubby has film of their romps

BRIT BIDS TO BUY UP £26m KEV SEX TAPES

GIRL ON FILM: Britney with Kevin

EXCLUSIVE

by IAIN BURCHELL

BRITNEY Spears has launched a desperate bid to stop a "dynamite" sex tape of her romping with Kevin Federline being seen around the world.

The furious pop princess is in crisis talks with her lawyers after her dumped husband threatened to sell the X-rated film to the highest bidder.

Federline has reportedly boasted to pals the four-hour tape shows a naked Britney performing a series of explicit sex acts.

It's believed to include the "insatiable" couple playing raunchy sex games. Sources say the footage is so red-hot it makes Paris Hilton's infamous home-made sex movie look "like Disney".

The tape is sure to send the internet into meltdown if it is released.

Kev is understood to have been offered £26million by a film company.

And legal experts say Britney, 24, will struggle to stop the wannabe rapper doing a deal because the tape belongs to him.

Fortune

She faces paying the £16m divorce settlement he is demanding to prevent the film getting out.

Federline, 28, also wants custody of their children Sean Preston, one, and Jaden James, eight weeks.

Britney has a water-tight pre-nuptial agreement giving him as little as £160,000 of her $65m fortune.

But the tape could make the pre-nup worthless - and shatter Britney's hopes of resurrecting her pop career.

A source close to the Toxic singer said: "She is absolutely furious with Kevin, and knows a full-on sex video could almost certainly ruin her chance of a career comeback."

"They were made for the couple to watch in the privacy of their home. She never thought he would sell them."

"Britney has contacted her lawyers to see how she can stop him but it is going to be a hard one."

"It is his tape, so in theory he owns the copyright."

BIG MONEY: Brit on stage

£65m empire of pop royalty

THE pre-nup drawn up by Britney's legal team reveals how the princess of pop made the £65m fortune she's desperate to protect.

Her lawyers drew up a detailed list of all her worldwide assets for the 60-page agreement.

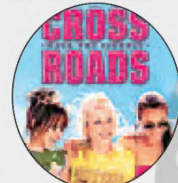

It shows exactly how much she was worth when she married Kevin Federline:

MUSIC: £13.5m:

Britney earned £5.2m from her fourth album In The Zone, before recording costs and royalty fees. Her company Britney Touring earned an average of £210,526 a night during her 2004 tour.

MERCHANDISE: £8.5m

Brit has made £6m from perfume. She signed a five-year deal with Elizabeth Arden in February 2004 to launch her own range of perfumes, cosmetics and skincare.

Her company Britney Brands received a £1.5m advance against sales of merchandise for her 2004 tour.

Sales of Britney dolls brought in over £1m.

TV AND MOVIES: £2m

Brit was paid £1.57m to star in the movie Crossroads. She earned £400,000 a time for US TV specials.

ENDORSEMENTS: £11m

Includes deals with Pepsi (£4.73m), Toyota (£1m), Samsung (£2m), Japanese brewery Kirin (£1m) and Skechers (£1m).

PROPERTY AND

VALUES: £11.5m

In 2004 Britney had six homes worth £8m. Her jewellery was valued at £170,000. She owned forestry worth £3.1m.

ANNUAL EARNINGS

In 2001 she made £10.2m - dropping to £2.1m in 2004. In June 2004, she had £16.92m in the bank.

COCKY Kevin Federline strutted down the street in a scruffy tracksuit yesterday as his divorce got nasty.

The wannabe rapper handed signed photos to youngsters in Washington DC on his Federation tour.

But experts think Kev, 29, is "Crazy" if he thinks his fame will last now Britney's kicked him out.

EAT DOHERTY

The star gets all snacky on his country weekend with olives and doughnuts

Pair set for cosy Xmas on a barge

■ EXCLUSIVE by LEIGH PURVES

■ SINGER Pete Doherty is planning to float away with Kate Moss this Christmas – on their very own love boat.

The Babyshambles frontman, 27, is borrowing a canal boat for the festive season and has invited model Kate, 32, to join him on board.

■ The loved-up couple spent the weekend in the Cotswolds, where Kate has a cottage.

And the model enjoyed taking Pete for a spin in the countryside in her classic open-topped MG Midget.

But pals say Pete secretly yearns for life afloat and is thinking of living permanently on a canal boat.

■ A friend said: "Pete just fancied doing something different this Christmas, so he is borrowing a canal barge from a friend for him and Kate to spend the holiday season on."

"They will have a quiet Christmas – it will just be the two of them plus Kate's four-year-old daughter Lila-Grace."

■ "Pete has always had a passion for the water and went on several barge holidays with mates in his teens."

"He's even told pals, including Kate, that his dream is to live on an old canal barge full-time."

MAN WITH THE GOLDEN PUNS

Top 10 tribute to cheekiest lines in 007 history

SUPERSPY James Bond is never lost for words – but it's his gadget maestro Q who's uttered the sauciest 007 line of all time.

In a new survey, fans have put his cheeky comment in space adventure Moonraker at No1 in the list of naughty Bond puns.

Q, played by Desmond Llewelyn, tells Sir Frederick Gray (Geoffrey Keen): "I think he's attempting re-entry, Sir."

They are watching Roger Moore's Bond taking sexy Dr Holly Goodhead (Lois Chiles) "round the world one more time" at the end of the 1979 flick.

At No2 is the final line of 1999's The World Is Not Enough. In bed with Dr Christmas Jones (Denise Richards), Bond (Pierce Brosnan) tells her: "I thought Christmas only comes once a year."

The Top 10 double entendres were voted for by around 3,000 Bond fans in an online poll by cinema ad legends Pearl and Dean.

Now 007 fans can't wait to find out whether new Bond Daniel Craig will be just as cheeky in Casino Royale – out on Thursday.

Pearl and Dean's Kathryn Jacob said: "Bond innuendoes seem to work best when they are at the end of the film and are as subtle as a brick!"

"I'm sure we can look forward to hearing a lot more classic lines in the new film."

Here's the full Top 10...

1 "I think he's attempting re-entry, Sir." Q to Sir Frederick Gray, Moonraker.

2 "I thought Christmas only comes once a year." Bond in bed with Dr Christmas Jones, The World Is Not Enough.

3 "Just keeping the British end up, Sir!" Bond to Sir Frederick Gray, The Spy Who Loved Me.

4 "I'm afraid you've caught me with more than my hands up." Bond to a gunman, Diamonds Are Forever.

by LAURA NEIL

5 "You appear tense... that's too bad. Going down, one should always be relaxed." Bond to Fatima before a diving trip, Never Say Never Again.

6 "When one is in Egypt, one should delve deeply into its treasures." Bond, The Spy Who Loved Me.

7 "It's just the right size – for me, that is." Bond remarks on Tatiana's mouth, From Russia With Love.

8 "The bubbles tickle my... Tchaikovsky." Pola in the Jacuzzi, A View To A Kill.

9 "Something big's come up." Bond chatting in bed with Jill Masterson, Goldfinger.

10 "I think I will enjoy very much serving under you." Aki to Bond, You Only Live Twice.

Rap for cover dodge drivers

■ by LAURA NEIL
COURTS have been urged to get tough on motorists driving without insurance. Transport Minister Stephen Ladyman said current fines, often less than the cost of cover, were not tough enough to deter people from breaking the law. Speaking on Tonight With Trevor McDonald on ITV1, screened at 8pm this evening, he said: "If the fine is less than the cost of insurance, then why would you buy insurance?" The programme reveals motorists are exploiting a loophole in police powers to seize and destroy cars of uninsured drivers in order to re-claim vehicles before they're crushed.

Turning

Drivers with comprehensive insurance cover for any car are turning up to collect impounded vehicles on behalf of their uninsured owners. People with comprehensive policies are able to take away any seized car simply by producing their own insurance certificate. Mr Ladyman said: "It appears to be being used by some people fairly extensively. "It's been suggested to me that one person repatriated about 60 vehicles in this particular way." The UK's estimated 2million uninsured drivers cause one in ten of all smashes. Last year 12,000 people were injured and 150 killed in accidents involving drivers without any cover.

Guests save PC

A WOMAN PC rescued by wedding guests when her car crashed into a river was fighting for her life last night. The officer was on patrol with a male colleague when their car mysteriously hit concrete pillars and landed in three feet of water. The male officer escaped but she was left trapped. Guests at a wedding reception in a hotel helped paramedics free her. Her condition was said to be "serious but stable" in intensive care. The accident in the early hours of yesterday morning was on the banks of the River Ouse in Bedford. Bedfordshire Police said last night: "The matter is under investigation."

WHY No13 REALLY IS UNLUCKY

It's Lotto loser over 12 years

NUMBER 13 is the National Lottery's unluckiest ball.

It has come up just 132 times in 12 years - 117 as a main ball and 15 as the bonus ball.

Luckiest balls are 38, 25 and 31. Number 38 has come up 199 times, 168 as a main and 31 as the bonus; 25 scores 155 for main and 31 as bonus; 31 has been a main ball on 153 occasions and a bonus ball 31 times.

Organisers Camelot unveiled the statistics just ahead of the Lotto's 12th birthday next week.

Odds

But they insist punters shouldn't stop choosing number 13 - because there's no way of predicting which balls will be the luckiest or unluckiest in the future.

And remember... It Could Be You! Since 1994, more than 1,900 players have become millionaires or multi-millionaires - despite odds of 13,983,816-1 against hitting the jackpot with a £1 ticket.

More than 70% of British adults enjoy a regular flutter with an average weekly stake of £3 on all Lottery games.

At £5billion, the National Lottery's

■ by BILL MARTIN

annual sales are £1bn higher than the combined sales of Coca-Cola, Walker's crisps, Cadbury's Dairy Milk, Nescafé coffee, Hovis, Warburton and Kingsmill bread, Andrex toilet tissue, Müller yoghurt and Robinson's soft drinks.

So far, the Lottery has raised more than £19bn for good causes with a further £1.5bn earmarked to help fund the 2012 London Olympics and Paralympics.

The highest jackpot payout so far has been the £22.6million won by Mark Gardiner and Paul Maddison in 1995.

Camelot figures show that jackpot winners are a generous lot with one in seven handing £1m or more to a family member or friend.

One in four big winners have given away more than 30%.

Top targets for spending are cars, property and travel. More than 75% of jackpot winners have moved house and one in seven now owns a property abroad. But a quarter of the winners who were employed when they bought their ticket STILL go to work.

DIRTY girl Christina Aguilera looked dressed to kill as she arrived for the after-show party for America's Saturday Night Live television hit.

Wearing a plunging black and white dress and killer heels, the blonde babe, 25, signed autographs at the Asia de Cuba restaurant in New York.

The sexy star is sure to give British fans a thrill on Friday when she starts the UK leg of her world tour at Sheffield Arena.

Oil's not well with JR plot

THE big-budget movie version of hit TV show Dallas is in crisis and may never be produced say insiders.

A host of stars including Shirley Maclaine, 72, and J.Lo, 37, had been lined up, but now only the role of JR Ewing - John Travolta, 52 - has been cast.

And shooting, scheduled to start this month, has been put back until January.

A source said: "It'll be a miracle if this gets made. The script totally sucks."

Rocket Man blasts holy hate-mongers

ELTON: BAN RELIGION ...IT'S ALL ANTI-GAY

MAKING HIS POINT: Elton John at a weekend gig in Montreal

Picture: RYAN REMIORZ / AP

by NIGEL PAULEY

SIR ELTON JOHN reckons ALL religion should be banned — because it “promotes hatred” of homosexuals.

The pop legend claimed religious movements lacked compassion and turned people into “hateful lemmings”.

Sir Elton, 59, rapped: “Religion has always tried to turn hatred towards gay people. It promotes hatred and spite.”

Despite this the star added: “I know so many gay people who love their religion. But I’d ban organised religion completely. It doesn’t work, it turns people into hateful lemmings and it’s not compassionate.”

“The world is escalating towards World War Three, and where are all the religious leaders? Why aren’t they having a conclave and coming together? I said this after 9/11 and people thought I was nuts. Instead of more violence, why isn’t there a meeting of religious leaders?”

Protests

The gay superstar also fired a broadside over the lack of protests on the streets nowadays in his candid interview with a magazine.

He said: “In the peace movement in the Sixties, musicians used to get through to people by getting out there and doing peace concerts.”

“We don’t do them any more. If John Lennon was alive today he’d be leading it with a vengeance.”

Elton said people were too busy blogging to take to the streets to stand up for what they believed in.

He added: “They protest online and that’s not good enough. You have to get out there and be seen, be vocal — and you’ve got to do it time and again.”

He pledged to continue his campaign for gay rights, saying: “I can’t sit back, it’s not my nature. I’m going to fight. I can’t ignore it and I won’t.”

MISSION: Beatrice

Bea is off to space

by ROSS KANIUK
PRINCESS Beatrice is to boldly go where no Royal has gone before — into space.

The 18-year-old daughter of Prince Andrew and Sarah Ferguson will fly on Sir Richard Branson’s Virgin Galactic mission.

It is the first commercial spacecraft and is expected to begin flights in less than three years.

Flight

Beatrice was persuaded to take part in the three-and-a-half-hour flight by new boyfriend David Clark, 24, who works in the sales and marketing division of Branson’s latest project.

David, an Edinburgh graduate, said: “She took some persuading but she has agreed to do it.”

He would not say if Beatrice would be paying for the £100,000 ticket.

LET US TEXT...

METHODIST minister the Rev Stephen Robinson, 46, is inviting worshippers at his church in Nottingham to text him their prayers.

Batman swoops

TWO policemen dressed up as Batman and Robin to arrest a suspected drugs offender.

Sgt Tony Smith and Pc Mike Holman went to his home pretending to be drunks looking for a fancy dress party.

The suspect tried to make a run for it when he saw seven of their colleagues in uniform outside the house in Weymouth, Dorset. But Sgt Smith — who was dressed as Batman — chased him over a fence and nicked him.

He said: “This was my first costumed acting experience. But it was tricky finding somewhere to put my CS spray.”

A POSTCARD written by 12-year-old Sarah Innes, of Sudbury, Suffolk, on a school trip to France has finally been delivered — 26 years late.

BURST

Twitching hour

TWITCHERS have spotted a north Pacific bird for the first time in Britain.

Enthusiasts are flocking to sleepy Dawlish on the Devon coast to catch a glimpse of the long-billed murrelet.

Mike Langman, of the Devon Birdwatch Preservation Society, said: “I don’t think Dawlish knows what has hit it. This is the first recorded sighting for Britain and only the second for the whole of Europe.”

The black and white murrelet usually spends winter on the coasts of Japan, with a few reaching South Korea.

X-TRA VIEWERS IN SWITCH

THE X Factor's switch to an earlier time paid off as it finally won the Saturday ratings battle with Strictly Come Dancing.

The ITV1 show pulled in more than 11million viewers in its new 6.35pm slot - its best figures so far this series.

Strictly Come Dancing, starring EastEnders Louisa Lytton, 17, trailed for the first time this year despite a series-best 10m viewers.

The X Factor move also shot an arrow through the heart of BBC1's Robin Hood, which slumped to just 5.5m - three million less than six weeks ago.

An ITV1 source said: "We're pleased that our move paid off."

HUGE RATINGS: Louisa

Still a Ray of hope

X FACTOR bosses have denied that group Eton Road and Ray Quinn, 18, cheated viewers.

Both acts were filmed auditioning for talent scouts just weeks before they appeared on the ITV hit series.

But a show spokesman said: "Neither have signed a management contract. So, technically, they have not broken the rules."

A music insider said: "It looks like a video was leaked by someone with a grudge."

SHOW OF FORCE: Sharon as Princess Leia and Louis as Chewbacca

EXCLUSIVE

■ by CAMERON MILLAR

STAR WARS broke out on The X Factor when Simon Cowell was dubbed Darth Vader.

TV's Mr Nasty stormed off the set in a rage after the cruel jibe from fellow judge Sharon Osbourne.

The bust-up came after Simon, 47, was forced to send home one of his own acts.

He had to choose between Nikkita Angus and Ray Quinn, both 18, after Sharon and Louis Walsh, both 54, split their votes.

Sharon voted to ditch Nikkita with Louis opting for Ray. And Simon went through agony before saying: "The act I am sending home tonight is Nikkita."

But an insider on the hit show revealed last night: "Louis and Sharon made it their mission to wind him up big time.

Insult

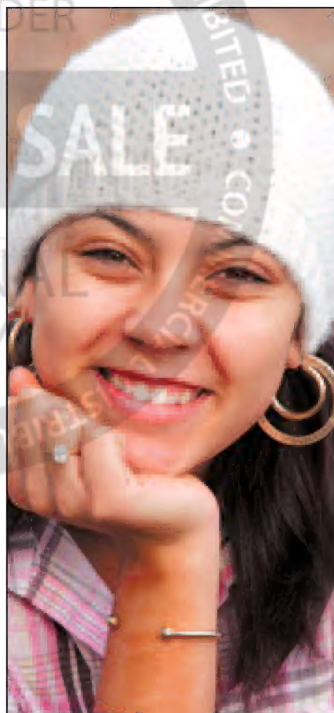

"The Darth Vader insult really got to him as he felt they were making out he was just a film caricature.

"By the end, Simon had just had enough and he stormed out of the Xtra Factor follow-up show on ITV2. When the cameras stopped rolling he had a face like thunder.

"He knows he's been cornered by the two of them and just doesn't know what to do next." But Nikkita defended Simon's decision saying it was "her time to go".

She said: "He had to pick one of us. To be put in that position is not nice for anyone."

Now she is planning a cosy reunion with Jermaine Sanderson, 23, whose band 4Sure was booted out earlier in the contest. She admitted she missed
